

All Animals

shutterstock.com • 605732729

By: Layton Johnson &
Boone Perkins

Lions:

Baby lions are very cute. Lion's are trained by their parents to hunt very young. Once they are all grown up they are very good hunters. Lions are meat eaters. They are considered the king of the jungle. Lions favorite food are things like water buffalo, wildebeest, zebra, ETC.

Elephants:

They are very big , male elephants average about 9 to 13 feet. Elephants are very majestic creatures. Elephants have funerals and care about family members very much. Elephants have very long noses that are called trunks they use their trunks to drink water to.

Japanese bobbail kittens:

They mature more quickly than other breeds. They are pregnant for about 65 days. A litter usually holds around 4 kittens newborns are bigger than other breeds but they are still born blind or deaf. Their senses start to work at 7 to 10 days.

Rhino:

They roll in the mud to keep bugs away and stay cool. They also eat plants. Rhinos have horns and an odd number of toes. Rhinos use their horn to protect themselves from other rhinos. Their skin is very thick like armor. They are the second largest land mammal.

THE

END

