

Stella the Bee

By: Rae and Haley

The was once a little bee
named Stella.
Stella lived in a rainbow forest
with all of her
bee friends.

Stella was on her way back from getting pollen when she saw a cool bird! Stella followed the bird to see where it went, and got farther and farther from the nest.

Suddenly, Stella hears a lot of noise. She looks around and sees so many new animals, but she can't find the bird she followed. Stella goes to talk to a new animal.

Stella goes to the big animal. The animal starts swatting at her.

“Hey!” She says, “Stop that! I just want to know where I am!”

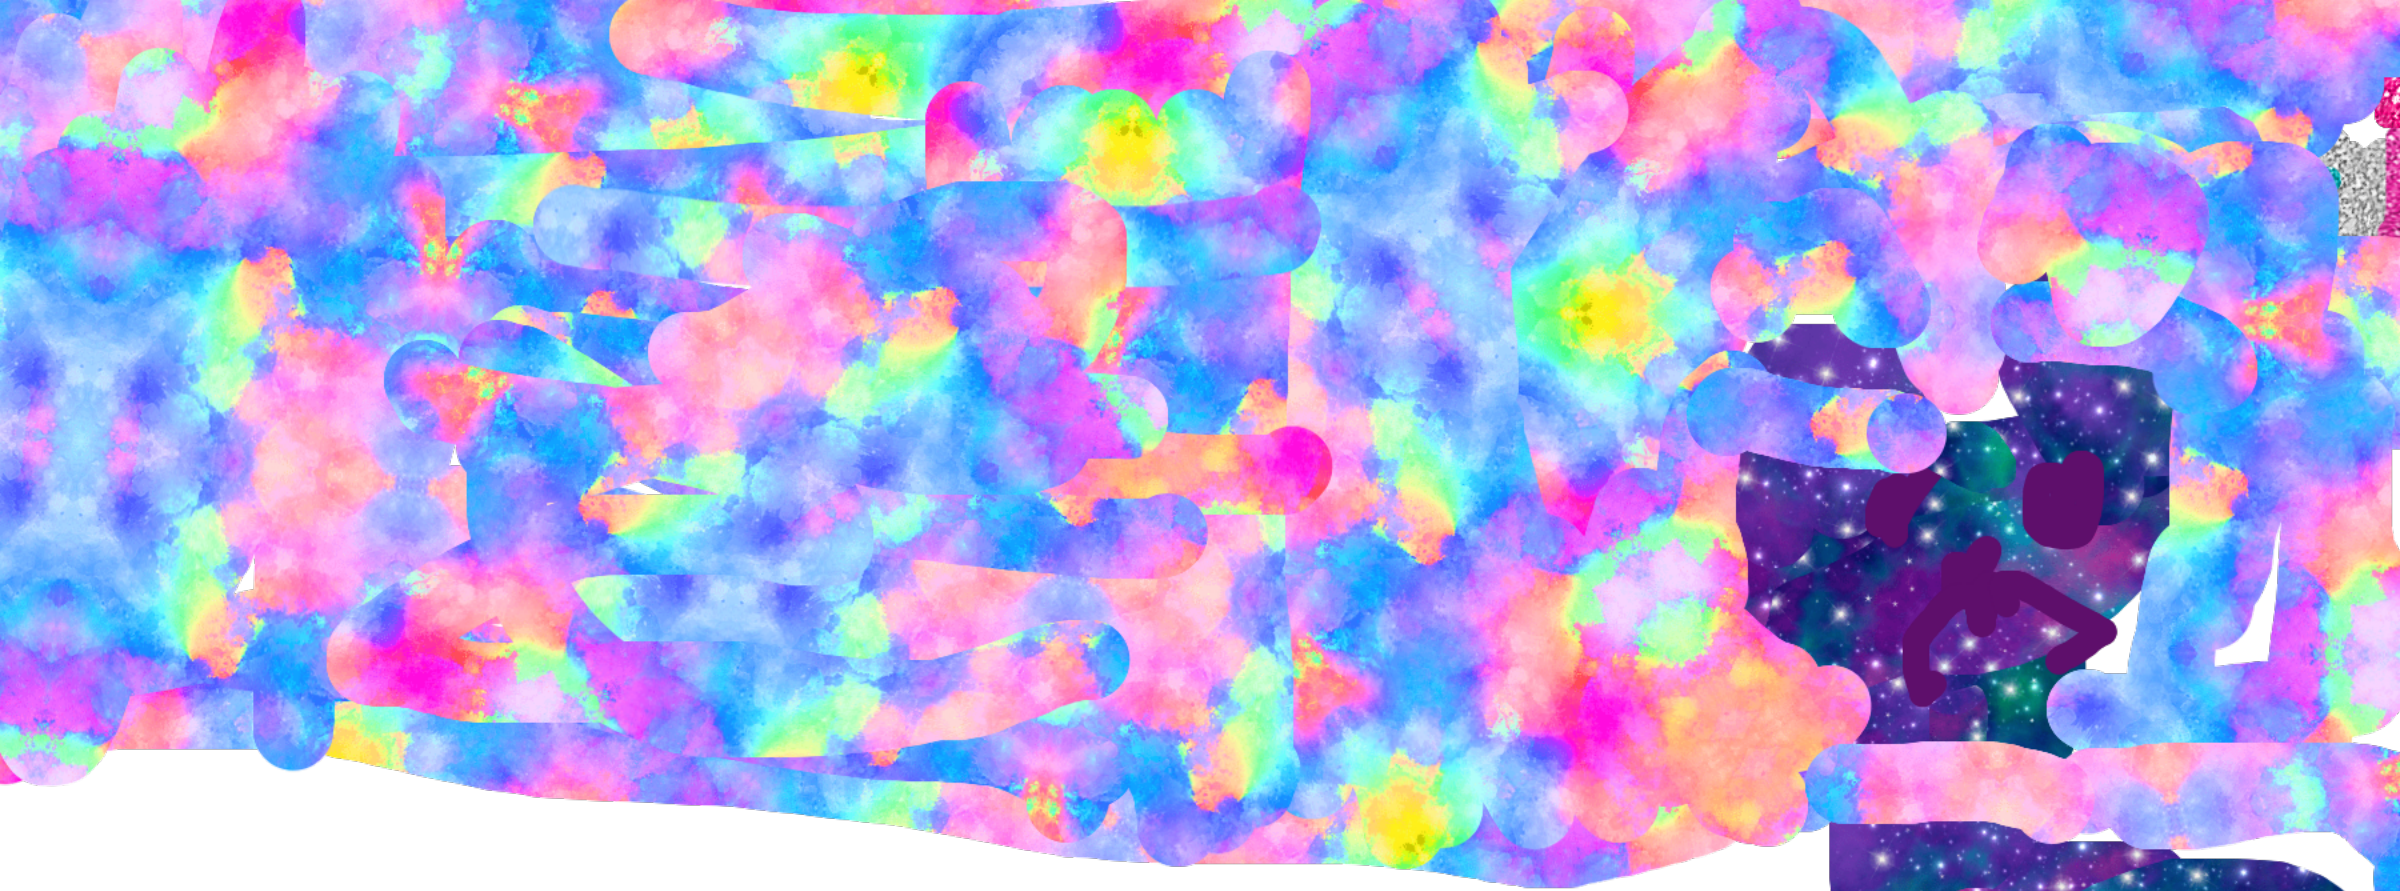

“Why should I tell you?” The grumpy animal asks,

“You’re a bee.”

“Why don’t you like bees?” Stella asked.

"When I was a cub, I was trying to get honey from a hive near a meadow. They stung me, and now all of a sudden I'm here."

"That sounds like my home!" Stella says,
"I'm lost from there. Do you know the way back?"

"Why do I need to help you?" The bear asked.

"I won't let them sting you again, I promise!" Stella exclaims.

"Fine," the bear says "but I won't be happy
about it!"

They
start walking on the path
deeper into the rainbow
woods.
They run into a
river,
and they see Stella's
house
across it.

They cross the river together, and Stella thanks the bear for his help. She gave him some honey as a gift for his help, and she goes back to her friends in the hive.

